AMERICAN LIVES WORTH MORE IN ARGONNE WOOD THAN IN MEXICO TODAY

Senate Committee Investigating Conditions In Mexico Hears Stories of Lawlessness That Will Make Good U. S. Blood Boil

OFFICIAL ROBBERY IS RIFE

And This Seems To Give Cue To The People To Take Whatever They Want—No Matter How Done

San Antonio, Jan. 14. (AP)—Stories of terrible cruelty, unredressed murders and devastation of property was given the senate sub-committee investigating the Mexican situation today by men yet in close touch with conditions in Mexico. T. M. McBea, a cattleman from a border town; James J. Britt, a lawyer from Tampico, and Geo. E. Blalock, once the head of what was the largest colony of American farmers in Mexico and who now is operating a small grocery store here, were the witnesses. The effect of their testimony was to strengthen the claims of witnesses heard in Washington that the insecurity of American life and property in Mexico is growing greater.

Britt, who reminded the committee that he is not employed by any oil company, asserted that American life was "worth more in the Argonne than it is today in the country about Tampico." He entered the United States only two days ago. He is one of the men who assisted in caring for the bodies of P. J. Roney and Earl Boles who were killed in the oil fields on December 30. The three had dined together on Christmas day.

Britt appeared confident that the men were killed by Carranza's soldiers. "They were killed within the Carranza territory," he said, "and the bullets we took from their bodies were those used by the government soldiers and not by the bandits. Moreover, Boles, after he had been brought to the ground by a bullet in his ankle, had been attacked from behind by a man with a machete. The blade had been thrust far into his body, turned downwards and then up again. The rebels in that part of the country do not carry machetes. The soldiers do."

Mistaken Identity
His theory that the killing was done by soldiers was further supported by telling how the paymaster of one of the oil companies who looks like Roney did, received permission about the same time the two had left to carry a certain amount of money into the oil fields. This information was transmitted to the Carranzistas. Britt believes those who killed Roney and Boles believed they were killing the paymaster and someone else.

He told the committee the Americans stood guard over the bodies until an autopsy could be held. "We had one experience of neglecting that phase of such a case," he said, "when James Wallace was shot. I know for a fact that he was not a drinking man and yet the claim set up by the Mexicans was that he was drunk. And this is what had happened. They had poured tequila into his mouth, and over his face after he was dead in order that the odor might support their claims."

Reference to the killing of Gabriel Porter, whose father lives here was made by the witness.

"Who was he?" inquired Senator Fall.

Only An American
"Only an American," was the reply.

The answer characterized the bitterness of his entire testimony. His arraignment of Carranza, Cabrera and other members of the government was as unstinted as it was caustic. He frankly charged government officials

CURTIS SEEKS FEDERAL LAW ON LYNCHING

ARKANSAS LAWYER SAYS THAT STATE NEEDS FEDERAL ATTENTION NOW

Rev. Robinson and Sec. Shillady Tell Committee Their Hard Luck Stories

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—Enactment of federal legislation to prevent lynching and race rioting was urged at the initial hearing today of a senate judiciary subcommittee conducted under the resolution providing for investigation into recent riots and submission of a report to the senate suggesting means of preventing recurrence of the disorders. Today's session was devoted entirely to the question of federal jurisdiction.

Senator Curtis, republican of Kansas, author of the resolution, presented to the sub-committee a copy of a report of the department of justice showing the activity of radical agitators among the negroes in various cities where rioting has occurred in the last six years and describing the manner in which these agitators have conducted a propaganda among negroes for the purpose of arousing unrest.

The report outlined an article by Frederick A. Blossim, secretary of the I. W. W. local of Paterson, N. J., textile workers, designed to arouse negroes. This article, the report said, was printed in the office of the Gary (Indiana) Post at the expense of Linn A. E. Gale of Mexico City, who, the report said, was believed to be a German agent.

Radical Activity
"It seems to me," said Senator Curtis in presenting the report, "that there is a very strong reason why the general government should take hold of this question and make a thorough investigation of it and into the activity of the radical element in this country in working up race riots."

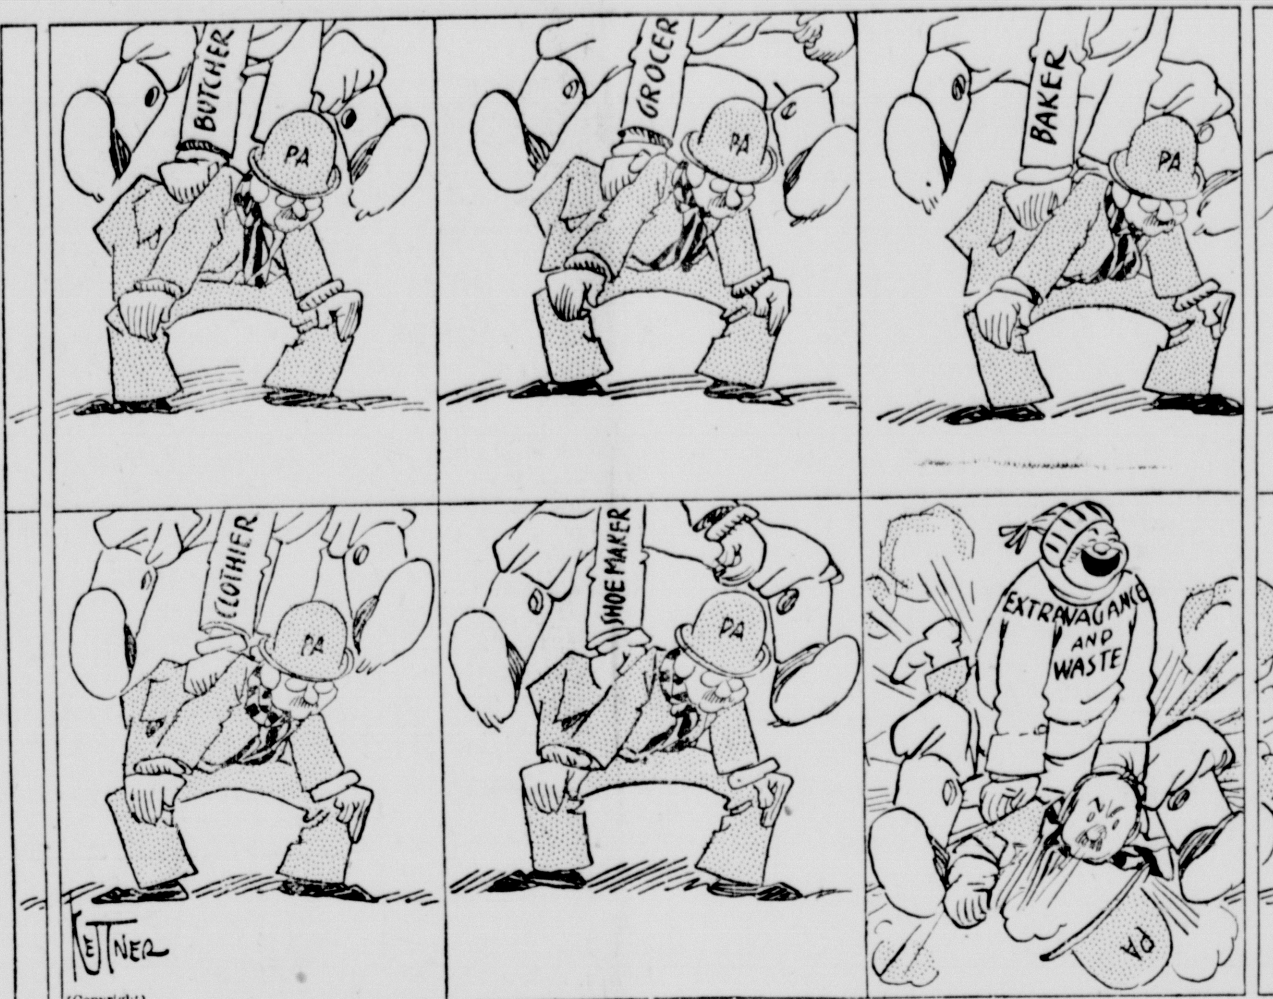

U. S. Bratton a white attorney of Little Rock Ark., who said his son narrowly escaped lynching in recent race riots, argued in favor of federal legislation, declaring the federal constitution guarantees all citizens an impartial trial which mob rule denied. He declared, however, that the recent trouble was not due to radical agitators but to the alleged system of peonage in Arkansas.

Bratton On Arkansas
"The conditions that exist there are such as to demand the attention of the federal government," Bratton said.

CALL FOR CONFERENCE TO FIND CURE FOR ILLS WORLD NOW SUFFERING

UNITED STATES CHAMBER COMMERCE ASKED TO LOOK AFTER DETAILS.

People Urged to Return to the Pre-War Standards and to Work and Save.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—A call for one of the greatest international conferences of commercial and financial figures ever assembled, in an effort to find remedy for the financial and commercial chaos in which the world has been left by the war, was issued here today, following the meeting of a coterie of nationally known financiers.

The appeal was issued simultaneously with similar proclamations in Great Britain, France, Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. In each case the documents were signed by business, financial, political and educational leaders in their respective countries.

In the case of the European countries, the appeal was addressed to the respective governments. In the United States, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was asked to arrange the preliminaries of the conference, while the appeal was addressed jointly to that body, the American government and the reparations commission in Paris.

Rely on Independent Action.
While Germany and Austria are not included in the original call it was announced that the delegates from these countries would be invited to attend the conference. To sum up the document, says the official announcement, "it is a call to the people to return to pre-war standards of reason, an appeal to the reparations commission for wise moderation as to the best business policy for all concerned; an appeal to governments to arrest inflation and meet inevitable burdens by increasing their revenue rather than by increasing their debts, an appeal to the people to work and save, an appeal to leaders of commerce and finance to get together in order to study the problems dispassionately and take it up as a business proposition, relying on independent action rather than government intervention. Government agents can be relied upon, however, to remove as rapidly as possible, the obstacles that impede such a course."

Among the prominent American signatories are J. P. Morgan, Herbert Hoover, Frank A. Vanderlip, H. B. Judson, president of the University of Chicago; Samuel Rea, Philadelphia; George M. Reynolds, Arthur T. Hadley, president of Yale University; A. W. Mellon, Pittsburgh; William H. Taft, Hery Buzzallo, president of University of Washington; Daniel Villard, Myron T. Herrick, Cleveland; Julius H. Arnes, president of the Grain Corporation, and Cleveland Dodge, A. Barton Hepburn, Darwin P. Kingsley, James A. Tillman and William Fellows Morgan, all of New York.

DEMSEY WANTS TO PROVE TO LEGION HE WAS NOT SLACKER

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14. (AP)—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, announced tonight that he telegraphed the national commander of the American Legion in Indianapolis asking for an opportunity for the heavyweight champion to appear before the supreme council of that body and give testimony as to his record during the war.

Kearns' action follows adoption by various posts of the American Legion of resolutions condemning Dempsey as a "slacker" and "draft dodger."

JOHN DODGE DIED OF PNEUMONIA; BROTHER HORACE RECOVERING

AUTO MAKER MADE FORTUNE OF FIFTY MILLIONS IN EIGHT YEARS

Made Gun Recoil Mechanism, Fooled Military Skeptics and Helped Win War

New York, Jan. 14. (AP)—John Dodge of Detroit, Mich., automobile manufacturer, died here tonight from pneumonia.

Mr. Dodge, with his brother Horace, came here to attend the automobile show. Both were stricken with influenza, which in each case developed into pneumonia. Horace Dodge is said by his physicians to be out of danger.

The career of John F. Dodge paralleled in many ways that of a majority of Michigan's leading automobile makers. It began in a small machine shop, included many struggles against poverty and failure and its close found him one of the motor kings of the world with a fortune estimated at upward of $50,000,000.

Dodge was born in Niles, Michigan, 54 years ago. After his public school education he served an apprenticeship in his father's machine shop. In 1886 he moved to Detroit to follow his trade. He was shortly afterward joined by his brother, Horace E. Dodge, and for years the brothers worked together as wage-earners. Their first business was in 1901 when they opened a shop of their own, employing twelve persons. They built parts for automobile concerns just starting in business.

In 1912 the brothers announced their intention of entering automobile business on their own account. The enterprise was successful from the beginning and under the impetus of the war it grew until today the Dodge interests employ approximately 18,000 persons.

One of the Dodge brothers' efforts after the United States entered the war was a $10,000,000 ordinance plant which despite the skepticism of military experts produced the delicate recoil mechanism of the French 155 millimeter guns. Machinery for this plant was built in Dodge factories and within a year after its construction was started, it was shipping twenty of the mechanisms daily to the proving grounds.

John Dodge rarely figured in the social life of Detroit. He was regarded as one of the city's most democratic millionaires. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and two sons.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS MAY SHOW TREATY IDEAS IN ELECTION OF LEADER

CIDER SELLERS MUST LOOK OUT IF DRINK KICKS

FRUIT JUICES UNDER THE BAN IF THE ALCOHOL IS OVER ONE-HALF PER CENT.

Natural Fermentation Will Offer no Excuse for Evasion of This Regulation.

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—In one of the broadest constructions yet placed on provisions of the act for enforcement of constitutional prohibition, Prohibition Commissioner Kremer has ruled that fruit juices and ciders come within the dry ban if they contain more than one-half of one per cent alcohol. The commissioner's interpretation of the law was set forth today in a memorandum charging prohibition directors and inspectors with the added duty of examining the alcoholic content of such beverages.

The drastic regulation goes into effect with constitutional prohibition January 16. Violation of it carries the same penalties as for the manufacture or sale of stronger liquors.

Officials in discussing the ruling asserted that such a step could not be taken under war-time prohibition nor was it enforceable under the prohibition laws of most of the states. Hitherto the bureau of internal revenue has held fast to the policy of assessing taxes against fermented liquors containing more than one-half of one per cent, but the regulations could not be applied to ciders and fruit juices because of the technical language of the law, it was said.

Strict enforcement of the regulation will hold liable dealers in fruit juices and ciders in which the alcoholic content increases even while in storage. The department does not intend, however, to gauge all beverages thus produced, officials said, but a "watchful eye" would be kept on these manufacturers, and dealers. Natural fermentation will offer no excuse for evasion of the regulation, it was declared.

COAL COMMISSION IS MAKING SPEED IN THE HEARING OF EVIDENCE

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—A third day of argument before President Wilson's commission for settling the coal strike left it practically ready tonight to proceed to the examination of the facts at issue between the miners and their employers.

The last of six spokesmen for the mine workers finished the preliminary statement of their case today, and Ralph Crews, counsel for the operators in the central competitive district, likewise completed the general statement in opposition. Operators in the central district will have one more argument, which will be made tomorrow by Phil H. Penna, of Terre Haute, Ind., and thereafter the commission will begin consideration of testimony and documentary evidence.

Communists Arrested

Kansas City, Jan. 14. (AP)—Three men, said by the authorities to be members of the communist party, were arrested in Kansas City, Kan., today. A request has been sent to Washington for deportation warrants.

BETWEEN HITCHCOCK AND UNDERWOOD AND ONE VOTE MAY DECIDE

HITCHCOCK DEFEAT COULD BE TAKEN AS REPUDIATION OF TREATY CAMPAIGN.

Underwood's Friends Deny This and Say Treaty Should Not Affect Selection of Leader.

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—Further and more determined efforts to bring about ratification of the peace treaty is expected to follow selection tomorrow by democratic senators of a leader to succeed the late Senator Martin of Virginia.

Senatorial conferences today were devoted almost exclusively to the leadership race between Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, administration manager in the treaty contest, and Senator Underwood, of Alabama, former democratic leader in the house. The democrats will caucus tomorrow morning before the senate to make their choice, with an extremely close contest in prospect.

Managers of the Hitchcock and Underwood campaigns, while both claiming victory agreed tonight that the democratic membership was very evenly divided and one vote might decide the contest.

Effect of the democratic leadership election on the treaty is predicted on variant positions taken by Senators Hitchcock and Underwood on ratification. Although both have urged unreserved ratification Senator Underwood declared several days ago that, if unable to secure complete ratification, he would support a resolution of partial ratification, excluding the league of nations covenant and leaving it for settlement in the fall elections. Senator Hitchcock has opposed such a course. Another factor is the authorship of Senator Underwood of the pending motion for appointment of a senate committee on conciliation.

Supporters of Senator Hitchcock urge his election as an endorsement of his ex-officio minority leadership during the illness and since the death of Senator Martin. They also emphasize that his defeat might be construed as repudiation of the administration's policy as regards the treaty.

In behalf of Senator Underwood, it has been denied that his election would or could be regarded as repudiation of the treaty management, either of Mr. Hitchcock, or the administration. The Alabama senator's friends have insisted that the treaty is a temporary issue which should not be a factor in election of a permanent leader, and have emphasized that Mr. Hitchcock, as ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee, would continue in charge of the treaty and also of all other questions of foreign relations coming before the senate even should Mr. Underwood be chosen leader.

MISSOURI WOMEN ARE AFTER SENATOR REED

THE CEMETERY ROAD.

Now that the Civic League has gotten after the permanent paving of the few blocks from Hearn avenue to Evergreen cemetery we may expect that the road will soon be fit for travel in any weather—something that has not been for a long time. There is no use in wasting words offering reasons why this improvement should be made for everyone in and near Paris is already familiar with them. Of course it is no easy matter to make this improvement but easy things are not on the program of the Civic League while things that are for the public benefit are their particular effort. Everyone may not agree with these ladies in their efforts to make a more beautiful and healthful city—some people would just as soon look at tin cans as flowers and others had as soon eat food that is exposed to dirt as to have it protected. Every man has his taste, to an extent, at least, but this cemetery road matter is one on which all will agree. There is not a family in Paris but has to use it at some time or another and many make frequent visits to the City of the Dead to keep alive their remembrance of loved ones gone before. It will be comparatively easy to get enough people together, after the matter is once started, to make the improvement with such city funds as may be available and such property assessments and private subscriptions as will be provided. Then when the roadway is made durable the ladies will see to it that the parkings are kept beautiful, and the whole thing will be a credit to Paris and a pleasure to all beholders and users of it.

BACK TALK

Milk Prices

Milk would never be so high if babies were fed on the kind nature intended for them. Now why don't somebody say amen?—Van Alstyne Leader.

Your argument, as I understand it, is that certain milk producers have gone on a strike and forced up the price of the product of other milk producers. I know this is the cause assigned for the high prices of other commodities, but you are the first to bring to my attention the real cause of the high prices of milk. But, like other politicians, you speak glibly of the trouble without pointing out the remedy. What steps would you have the government take against the non-producers? Would you have a high-salaried commission appointed to see that all babies, when hungry, charge the natural fount of sustenance?

Moving To Town.

Denison is not the only North Texas town in need of more homes. McKinney, the thriving little community to the south, complains that many persons can not locate there because they can not find homes. The building of homes in Texas has not kept pace with the increase in population.—Denison Herald.

What is true of Denison and McKinney is also true of Paris, Clarksville, Dallas, Honey Grove, and every other town and city in the state. The world is moving to town, and the reason more people do not live in town is that there are no houses or tents for them to live in. The lights and the crowds have attracted the rural population and they are forsaking the country for the towns. Every man to his soldier, but it is Back Talk's honest opinion that most of the people who are now moving to town are making a mistake. Never before did farm work yield such rich returns, and never before was it possible to have so many of the conven-ences of living at the country home. If Back Talk had a good country home he knows what he would do. He would put electric lights and water works in it, and he would stay right there until the bugler from the dim shadows across the river sounded the summons of an unrelenting fate and the silent boatman came to escort him to the other shore. There are bright lights, and rush, and noise and excitement in the city, but there is peace, there is content, and there is independence in the old country home.

Pathetic Sight.

Of course the world is full of pathos, but did you ever see anything worse than a bowlegged girl trying to wear a narrow skirt?—Dallas News.

There's nothing pathetic about a bowlegged girl wearing a narrow skirt. Everything seems to function about as well when the bowlegged girl wears a narrow skirt as when any other kind of a legged girl wears a narrow skirt, or when the bowlegged girl wears any other kind of a skirt. I have witnessed what you term a pathetic sight many times, and have never yet been moved to tears, neither did the girl show any signs of crying or wanting to cry. The length of a skirt has far more to do with the case than the width thereof. But since there are a lot of fellows of your type, who always make remarks when the underpinning of the girl doesn't appear adapted to the skirt she wears, let me ask if men do not put on some shows calculated to make men and angels weep. Did you ever see an oven-shaped man in a full-dress suit? Did you ever cast your eyes on a fellow clad in white palm beach suit just after he had sat down upon a green grass-hopper?

Centralization or States Rights.

Can you imagine the antics of your body if the various members should suddenly develop individual brains and each ignore the stimulus from the nerve centers of the brain? One foot would want to go down street, the other up. The left eye would wish to be reading, the right to look at pictures. The stomach might crave for meat and the kidneys refuse to act as a filter for anything but water. One ear might long for music of a cathedral, while the other insisted on burlesque jazz. What a time we'd have, trying to satisfy all the impulses and we'd finally end by begging that the control be given again to one central intelligent body. It is impossible for any organism or any institution with more than one part to exist without a recognized and controlling factor. Think it over.—Joplin News-Herald.

Rather an ingenious argument for centralization. It's about the same Mr. Alexander Hamilton made more than one hundred years ago. This distinguished statesman's dream of a perfect government was a great central power at Washington imposing its will upon distant communities. Mr. Jefferson feared centralization. He urged that the states be given control of their local affairs delegating to the national government power to legislate on matters that concerned all the people. Jefferson's plan was adopted and under it the greatest government the world has known was built up. The central brain power directs the energies of all the members of the body. 'Tis true, but the brain should undertake to do the seeing, the walking, the digesting and the filtering. Don't you think it would make a mess of it? Then again, if the nose and the stomach and the kidneys should get together and say the eyes should look only at certain things and the tongue must taste only morsels that are sweet, don't you think disorder would follow and the system would soon go to pieces. Back Talk does not believe we can improve on the old Democratic plan of permitting the states to have control over affairs that concern only their people, and let the national Congress legislate on matters that concern the people as a whole. Lamar county people know what kind of a stock law, and fence law, they need, and it would be unwise to leave such regulation to men in far-off Washington. Texas people know what kind of school laws will work best in their state, and it is far better to let the representatives that go up from Texas counties frame the school laws than to leave such legislation to a Congress made up largely of men who know nothing of Texas people or Texas affairs. A school law framed by the national Congress would probably require white and black children to attend the same schools. This would work all right in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New York, but it would surely start trouble in Texas.

A CITY TEACHER

By HELEN PATTERSON.

Slowly the big car stopped in front of the white schoolhouse that was perched upon a low hill. It was after school hours and there was nothing that indicated the house had been filled with noisy boys and girls only a half-hour before.

"Yes, this is the very place," said the occupant of the car aloud. "Not much changed, either, since I ate my dinner on that rock, barefooted and happy. New paint, shades and a hall give it a more modern appearance. I wonder if the old desks are inside. I'm going to investigate." and suiting his actions to his words he was soon testing the hall door. To his surprise it yielded to his touch. "Janitor must be a little careless," he thought, as he crossed the narrow hall and entered the schoolroom. In the dusk of the short, wintry afternoon he could see that the room had changed. New desks, blackboards, pictures and sash curtains gave it an unfamiliar aspect. The fire was not wholly out in the big stove, and as the man warmed his fingers he became conscious that he was not alone. Turning, he faced the teacher's desk. A slip of a girl, with traces of tears on an unusually pretty face, sat behind it, watching him. For a moment the man looked at her, and then in a kindly voice asked:

"Lonesome?"

"No, not entirely that," replied the girl, winking hard to keep back the tears.

"Discouraged and tired?" he continued.

"Yes," quickly answered the girl. "Ah," said the man, pausing to draw a chair nearer to the stool, "but I don't believe it's nearly as bad as you think."

"Yes, it is. This morning I was just as happy, thinking of all the beautiful Christmas stories I was going to teach the children and what a good time we would have illustrating them."

"And what marred your plans? Weren't the children interested?"

"Interested? You ought to have seen them; but it's a member of the school board. He had to visit us this afternoon and spoil everything. He didn't want me elected because I had always lived in the city and this was my first year of teaching. Outside of a few small summer resorts I know nothing of the country, but I argued the children would be ignorant of city life, and I could give them that. This afternoon we had practical arithmetic, original problems. Some of the prices of grains, pigs (live weight), wood and fertilizers the older children didn't agree on, and I knew nothing about them. Mr. P— gave us the correct prices. After school was dismissed he asked me if it would not be as well to acquaint myself with what the boys and girls were interested in. The new superintendent is a young man, and this is his first year also. Of course he will do just what the school board tells him to do, and I shall be asked to resign, and you don't know how I hate to go home because I've failed."

"I think I do," answered the man with a kind smile.

For a few minutes they talked, the man telling humorous experiences that had happened when as a little boy he had sat on the long board that served as a seat, and vainly tried to make his feet touch the floor, until the girl forgot about her troubles; then he took her to her boarding place. It was not until the car was out of sight that the girl remembered she did not know the man's name.

Two weeks quickly passed. Busy with her work, the girl had almost forgotten the new superintendent, and that she had intended resigning her school. She faithfully studied farm products and could satisfy the most exacting member of the school board on their market values.

School had just been dismissed. The girl, picking up papers, was singing softly to herself, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," when a small boy who had been clapping erasers rushed into the room.

"Miss M—! Miss M—" he cried. "The new superintendent is out here in the dandiest car!"

"Hush, Robert," she said as she turned to greet the superintendent, who had followed close after the boy. Slowly the color receded from her face only to rush back in a burning blush as she looked at the man in front of her.

"Miss M—" he was saying in the same kind voice that had haunted her for two weeks, "I really intended to get here earlier, but a bad tire detained me. However, I thought I would get here before school dismissed, but I'm ten minutes too late."

"Why—you are—if you are Mr. C—, the superintendent, it was unfair," said the girl, her eyes flashing.

"Yes, I guess it was," replied Mr. C—, "but really, Miss M—, it wasn't an official visit and I had forgotten the fact myself until it was too late. So let us forget it and begin over again today."

"I can't. It was so childish and stupid of me."

"If your work is finished I'd like very much to help make you forget by taking you for a ride. The air is cool and brisk. Besides I want to tell you your resignation will not be accepted—at least this term."

"Say," remarked precocious Robert a few minutes later, as he watched the big car out of sight, "I'll bet Miss M— won't teach very long. She is just the bestest, prettiest girl I know, and that's the dandiest car."

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

CURE HAY WELL BEFORE BALING

Can Be Kept Indefinitely Without Danger of Heating if Properly Treated.

AIR CIRCULATION IS NEEDED

Crosswise Method of "Cording" Prevents Air Spaces From Being Covered and Insures Ventilation Through Pile.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Baled hay that has been thoroughly cured in the barn or stack before baling can be stored indefinitely without danger of heating, say specialists. It may be piled so that the bales fit very closely together. Hay baled from the windrow and cock, however, unless very well cured, is likely to heat more or less in storage. Sometimes the heating becomes so intense that the hay becomes severely damaged or even unmarketable.

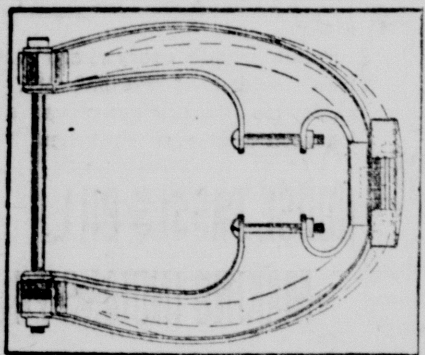

Lessen Danger of Heating.
Damage from heating may be greatly lessened and sometimes entirely obviated by storing the bales on edge, allowing an inch or two of air space between them. When bales are piled flatwise the air is excluded and heating is likely to occur, whereas leaving an air space tends to prevent heating by inducing circulation, which cools the hay. The first layer of bales placed in a barn should be placed on edge, and the second and every alternate layer should be placed on edge and crosswise. This crosswise method, or "cording," prevents any of the air spaces in the tier from being entirely covered and insures ventilation through the entire pile. The heated air works up around the edges of the bales and the cooler air enters from the sides and bottom.

Methods of Storing.
When bales that have been baled flat on their sides begin to heat it becomes necessary to move the bales and pile them in the manner just described. If there are any indications of heating when the hay is put into the barn, or if the hay grower has any doubt about the hay keeping, it is best to pile the bales crosswise on edge, rather than take any risk, even though this method of storing wastes more or less storage space. Cases are on record in which hay growers, usually beginners, have baled hay from the windrow and cock, and because it spoiled in the mow, owing to improper storing, have become convinced that baling from the field was not a success, not realizing that the fault lay in the manner in which the hay was stored.

ICE SHOE MADE ADJUSTABLE

Creepers Arranged for Attachment to a Horseshoe to Prevent Horse From Slipping.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing an adjustable ice shoe, the invention of W. H. Norris of Nashville, Tenn., says: The object here is to provide an adjustable ice shoe or creeper arranged for convenient attachment to a horseshoe and the hoof, and designed to prevent the animal from slipping when walking on icy or slippery roads. Further, to provide a shoe which may be readily adjusted and securely placed in position on a horseshoe and a hoof. For the purpose use is made of auxiliary toe and heel calks mounted on caps fitting the ordinary toe and heel calks of the horseshoe, means for connecting the caps with each other within the opening of the horseshoe, and means for connecting the caps with each other around the hoof. An inverted plan view of the shoe or creeper is shown in the engraving.

HOGS ECONOMICAL FOR MEAT

Animals Produce More Flesh for Given Quantity of Feed Than Either Cattle or Sheep.

Hogs are economical when it comes to converting feed into meat. They thus produce more flesh for a given quantity of feed than cattle or sheep. Farmers cannot afford to buy meat if it is at all possible to raise hogs on the farm. And there are very few farms where hogs cannot be raised to advantage, at least enough for the home meat supply, if pains are taken, to provide grazing crops.

This is a favorable time to start. By preparing land and getting ready to sow crops for grazing farmers may take thought for the morrow.

By beginning with breed sows it does not take long to raise enough hogs to make enough meat for the ordinary family. But the feed should be available and the pasture prepared before a start is made.

STRANGE VISITORS TO INDIANS

Savages Not Unnaturally Alarmed When Airmen "Dropped In" to Their Village.

Army aviators stationed at France field, near Cristobal, in the Panama canal zone, are required to do much of their flying over water and along the coast. Recently two pilots made a flight to the Gulf of St. Blas, which is situated on the Atlantic coast about one hundred miles west of France field. The mainland and small islands in the gulf are inhabited by Indians, who are very unfriendly.

Due to the overheating of a motor one of the pilots was compelled to descend, and landed on one of the most populous of the islands. His companion in the second airplane followed him. Consternation reigned among the natives when the two airplanes "taxied" up to the dugout village and came to a halt. What followed is described in the bulletin of the air service which contains an official report of the trip: "It is doubtful who was the most fearful on this occasion, for when the begoggled pilots alighted from their machines the entire population of the island was lined up, armed to the teeth. The chief of the village very reluctantly took his place at the head of this aggregation and with a machete in his hand greeted the visitors with a scowl. "One of the pilots was a new arrival in Panama and unfamiliar with stories about the unfriendliness of the Indians. As soon as he stepped on the beach he rushed up and greeted the chief in a very effusive manner, and fortunately his friendly smile was properly interpreted. After this the pilots were permitted to go through the village, and by way of courtesy the chief was asked by means of signs to take a ride in one of the airplanes, which invitation was not accepted."

The pilots tried to take pictures of the Indians, but the appearance of the camera aroused such hostility that they finally gave up the attempt. Before leaving the village the chief and a few of the young men were induced to smoke cigarettes which the aviators produced.

Has Biblical Sanction.

The American Humane Education society thinks it has made a point by showing that "Spare the rod and spoil the child" cannot be found in the Bible, but was written by Samuel Butler in 1633. Butler probably got the alliterative "spare and spoil" from Ralph Venning, who used it in 1649, but the idea goes back to Proverbs 13:24: "He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." We are with the Humane Society (and the chastening) in questioning the dominance of unselfish love in the average "chastening," but cannot approve of its quibbling as to the quotation, so far as substantial sanction goes. But most people would be surprised to learn that the exact words were not scriptural, just as they would be to learn that there is no direct statement about the lion and the lamb lying down together. Many still think "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" is from the Bible, although Sterne quoted it, without credit, from Henry Estienne. Wesley's vague quotation of an ancient Hebrew's "Cleanliness is next to godliness" sounds like Bible. Numerous passages from hymns are also erroneously ascribed to scripture.—New York Times.

Criterion of Civilization.

It is impossible to contemplate without interest the struggle made by different nations, as they emerge from barbarism, to supply themselves with some visible symbol of thought—that agency by which the mind of the individual may be put in communication with the minds of a whole community. The want of such a symbol is itself the greatest impediment to the progress of civilization. For what is it but to imprison the thought . . . within the bosom of its author, or of the small circle who come in contact with him, instead of sending it abroad to give light to thousands and to generations yet unborn? Not only is such a symbol an essential element of civilization, but it may be assumed as the very criterion of civilization, for the intellectual advancement of a people will keep pace pretty nearly with its facilities for intellectual communication.—William Prescott in "The Conquest of Peru."

Undersea Photos.

Prof. W. H. Longley, of Goulay college, Baltimore, has completed a set of thirty-two under-water photographs of the brilliantly colored tropical fish which inhabit the waters of Hawaii. Taken with a specially designed camera, Prof. Longley hopes to develop the plates to reproduce the natural colors. He believes they are the first photographs of the kind taken. The plates have been packed in airtight cases for shipment to Baltimore, where they will be developed.

Magnanimous.

"That boy Josh of mine has a mighty forgiving nature," remarked Farmer Cornsloss. "How does he show it?" "Comes back home a sure-enough hero and treats me jes' as kind an' considerate as if I had never once put on airs-an' ordered him to the woodshed for discipline."

Transformation.

"Has life in the military camp done your husband any good?" "He's a different man, my dear. He sweeps the floor, washes the dishes and peels the potatoes without a word."—Loving's Magazine.

TO PREPARE BLIND BOY FOR USEFUL LIFE

A few days ago Miss Johnnie Jennings, who has charge of the work of the King's Daughters with an office at the Chamber of Commerce, was notified by telephone by some of the neighbors that the family of W. T. Russell needed some assistance. On investigation it was learned that Mr. Russell had five children the eldest of whom was only twelve years old and that their mother died a year ago while they were living at Woodland, Red River county, where he was farming. Mr. Russell, himself, is unable to work at present on account of a sore arm which became infected a few days ago while he was working at a factory.

When the King's Daughters visited the family it was found that one of the children, a boy nine years old, was blind. His father stated that he was born blind. The child, who appeared very handsome and manly in a neat suit of clothes, is named Herschel Dennis. It occurred to the King's Daughters that his hard lot in life could be vastly improved by sending him to the Institute for the Blind at Austin, where he could learn to read and be taught a useful profession that could render him self-supporting.

When the matter was mentioned to the little boy he was eager and ambitious, and his father readily gave his consent, although the separation would be felt by him and by the little brothers and sisters. Sheriff Clarkson left for Austin yesterday afternoon for Austin on business and the King's Daughters entrusted the little fellow to his care, they paying the boy's way.

WIDOW ANSWERS LETTER FOR HER HUSBAND

Dr. E. H. Stark who served as a surgeon in the army in France, was very much attached to his commander, Col. Chas de Bremond, and has written several letters to him since they both returned to America. The last one written by the doctor was last month. Col. de Bremond at that time had been staying at Roswell

N. M. In reply to the letter Dr. Stark received a note with black border enclosed in a black-border envelope, written by the wife of his former commander acknowledging for her husband the receipt of his letter, stating that "It came too late for the 'Commander' whom I know you loved and whom I know loved you, had just left us."

The widow concludes by saying: "I will say now only that I have heard him talk of you many many time and always of your wonderful courage and devotion to duty—or, I might better say, 'just devotion,' which seems to mean more of the personal and loving interest in your patients. He enjoyed so thoroughly your earlier letters."

KANSAS WOULD ADD TO REVENUE BY TAXES ON GROSS OIL PRODUCED

Topeka, Jan. 14. (AP)—That Kansas should levy a gross production tax on petroleum, gas and minerals produced in the state, thereby adding a million or more dollars to the state's yearly revenue, was the recommendation made in a report filed with Governor Henry Allen today by J. E. Cato, following a three months' investigation of the books and accounts of the state oil inspector.

The report calls attention to the fact that Oklahoma and Wyoming have such a tax.

PROHIBITION FUND FOR WHISKEY NOT TOBACCO REP. UPSHAW ASSERTS

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—Denying that the recently-inaugurated Anti-Saloon League campaign for $25,000,000 was for the purpose of securing funds with which to wage a legislative war against tobacco, Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia, a leader in anti-saloon leagues, declared in a statement tonight the opponents of prohibition were attempting to divert attention from enforcement of prohibition laws by raising false issues. The proposed fund, he said, would be used to aid enforcement of prohibition laws in the United States and to help wage prohibition campaigns in other countries.

LIQUOR WAREHOUSES NEED MANY GUARDS

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—Employment of a force of 2,500 watchmen to guard 69,000,000 gallons of liquor held in government bonded warehouses is planned by the internal revenue bureau to protect the liquor against theft, which is occurring daily, Prohibition Commissioner Kremer today told the house appropriations committee. He asked that congress make $2,000,000 available immediately for establishing the guard.

No plan for the final disposition of the liquor has been determined on, Mr. Kremer said.

GROWER DENIES THAT HIGH CLOTHING COST DUE TO PRICE OF WOOL

Says The Raw Material In An Average $75.00 Suit Can Be Bought For $5.25

Salt Lake City, Jan. 14. (AP)—The statement of H. R. King, of Seattle, before the National Retail Clothiers' Association, at Chicago, yesterday, that clothing prices will advance from 25 to 40 percent partly because of the higher wool prices, was characterized as "absurd" by Dr. S. W. McClure, secretary of the National Wool Growers' Association here today. Mr. King said that Australian wool had increased from $1.14 a pound in 1914 to $4.10 a pound now.

"The truth of the matter is that wool is no higher in Boston, the wool market of the country, today, than it was ninety days ago," Dr. McClure said, "and the highest price yet paid for clean wool in Boston is around $2.10 per pound and this for the very finest grade. Ordinary, three-eighths blood wool and the class out of which soldiers uniforms were made and the most useful grade of wool in the world for clothing purposes is selling today in Boston at from $1.30 to $1.40 per pound, secured. This wool has not advanced in the last ninety days.

"To manufacture a suit of man's clothing, suitable for the average-sized individual and made of medium winter-weight goods, requires about sixty-two ounces of wool. Thus, at the present price, the wool in an average man's suit can be bought for $5.25 and this on the presumption that the suit is made of all wool. Such suits at this retail today at from $60 to $75. If one were to use the very finest wool grown in the manufacture of this suit not more than $7 worth of wool could be used."

We buy anything in the way of used household goods, from the parlor to the kitchen, all you have or single pieces, especially stoves, refrigerators, ice boxes, etc., and pay the highest cash price for what you have. We always have plenty of money to put into these goods. See us.

BRYAN PREDICTS THAT SENATE WILL RATIFY PEACE TREATY TODAY

Chicago, Jan. 14. (AP)—William Jennings Bryan, who stopped in Chicago today on his way to Washington, predicted that the senate would ratify the peace treaty tomorrow.

While giving no specific reason for expecting this action, Mr. Bryan said that the senate must bow to the public demand that there be no more delay.

"The people everywhere want action instead of words," Mr. Bryan said. He denied here was a split between him and President Wilson.

THE SETTLEMENT

By JOSEPHINE MURPHY.

In her youth Janet H— had known every luxury. Her father had been a wealthy merchant. Many woovers had sought her hand, but only one had made a favorable impression on the girl's mind. His name was Ralph B—, and he earned his bread as a reporter on the staff of a daily newspaper.

On such a person Mr. H— was not disposed to bestow his daughter. His success in business had turned his head and he looked forward to Janet marrying one of higher social standing.

Ralph met with only cold glances from Mr. and Mrs. H— when he encountered them. Gradually his visits ceased, and before the collapse of Mr. H—'s business the young man had gone, no one knew where or whether; few cared.

Neither Mr. H— or his wife long survived their change in fortune. The former had invested all the money he could raise in a new, and as it turned out, bogus company. Thus Janet was entirely unprovided for.

She entered the Mayton hospital, from which she later graduated as a private nurse.

Her first case was with Norman W—, an old man of very comfortable means. Here she remained as his nurse and faithful servant until death called him.

His entire property was bequeathed to her at his death. The antiquies and curious old statuary of the mansion held a strange charm for her.

About a week after Mr. W—'s death she was sitting in the library reading when the sound of an auto brushing the curb came to her ears. Laying aside the book, she arose from her chair and started to walk toward the window, but was interrupted by a knock on the library door. To her answer the maid announced that a young man wished to see her.

Glancing at the card the maid had handed her, Janet recognized the lawyer's name.

"Very well," said Janet. "Show him in."

"Good evening, Miss H—. I have rather strange news for you," he remarked, as he sat down.

"Proceed," said Janet.

"Well," began the lawyer, "it appears in some valuable papers of Mr. W— that he had a married daughter, who, through some family disagreement, had left her father's home. The girl has since died, but her only child, now a young man, still survives, and he has put in a claim for his mother's share of the property. I have come to inform you beforehand. I shall bring this young man to see you tomorrow and we shall decide what further proceedings shall take place."

"Certainly!" said Janet. "I shall be very glad to give up that which belongs to another."

After he left she sighed gently. She wondered if she would now have to face the cold world again. She had, however, managed to save a neat sum; thus she would not be utterly penniless and after a short rest she would start out once more.

The next morning found the lawyer and Mr. W—'s grandson on their way to the mansion. As the young man entered his eyes opened in wonderment, as did Janet's, at the antiquies, etc.

"Say," he gasped, "this is something worth while looking for."

They had finally reached the library and had been seated but a few minutes when Janet entered.

"Janet! Miss H—! I never thought, never imagined I should see you!"

"And you, Ralph B—, are Mr. W—'s grandson?"

"So it seems," said Ralph.

"I am so glad, so glad!" cried Janet. "Did I not mention Miss H—'s name?" the lawyer questioned. "I must have been unusually stupid."

Ralph did not answer. He still held Janet's hand, and at length the lawyer so far recovered his wits as to quit the room.

When he next saw the two no mention was made of Janet's desire to relinquish the estate, and the lawyer put forth a tentative query.

"Settlement?"

"Oh, yes, we have arrived at a settlement," Ralph said, with a joyous laugh, "since Janet has consented to marry me."

Writer's Cramp.

Writer's cramp does not interfere with other manipulations of the affected hand. A prominent surgeon now totally unable to write uses the affected hand easily to perform all the delicate and varied manipulations incident to abdominal surgery.

Complete rest of the hand, massage and electrical treatment may afford relief, but the trouble is likely to recur. Some victims learn to write with the left hand, but the disease is prone to extend into the newly trained member.

The method of writing from the elbow or shoulder instead of from the knuckle prevents writer's cramp. Affected persons can use the typewriting machine perfectly.

Hard to Suit.

Ellie—He found my gloves in his pocket and he returned them by special delivery.

Stella—That was very thoughtful of him.

Ellie—Thoughtful? It was an insult to rush them back, as it indicated that he thought I had only one pair.

TICK ERADICATION CASE REPORTED REVERSED

The News was informed by R. L. Lattimore yesterday that he and H. B. Birmingham had received a telegram from the clerk of the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin stating that the court had just handed down an opinion reversing and dismissing the Wynn case from Roston in which the defendant was convicted of refusing to dip his cattle under the tick eradication law. In the trial of the case the law was attacked as unconstitutional.

Several cases have been tried in other counties in which the defendants were convicted and in which on appeal the judgments were affirmed, the defense having been made on other grounds than constitutionality. It is claimed that this was the first case appealed in which the question of constitutionality was raised. Mr. Lattimore stated that he was unable to tell whether the decision rendered yesterday wholly nullifies the tick eradication act or not, but that presumably it does, as the question of constitutionality was the only issue raised. The attorneys have written to the clerk of the court for a copy of the opinion.

Plaintiff further alleges that she and defendant were legally married on the 10th day of February A. D. nineteen-fifteen, and lived together until the first day of March, A. COUGHING, WEAK AND RUN-DOWN AFTER FLU

Regained flesh and strength quickly, and tells how.

"I nearly died from 'flu' last October, and it left me with a terrible cough. The doctor gave me one bottle of medicine after another, but it did me no good. Went to Charlotte, N. C., and took treatment of a specialist without any permanent benefit. I saw Milk's Emulsion advertised and started using it. It helped me right from the start. I had no appetite and my stomach was in bad shape. But 12 bottles have straightened me out entirely. I eat anything without distress. My cough is gone and I have gained back my strength and flesh."—Emma Withers, Box 50, Belmont, N. C.

Don't trifle with a weak, run-down condition. It leaves you open to serious diseases. Get your strength back. Milk's Emulsion costs nothing to try. Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

was knocked over the curb, clear across the sidewalk and up into his

it was pretty badly damaged.An accident occurred at the inter-

People Should Take
Blue PhosphateWhat It Is And How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve-Force.Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms and neck, and repairing only hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.Fatness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern food.
Phosphate has the effect of building that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as "Blue Phosphate," which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction money back.By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, Blue Phosphate should soon produce a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astounding.Increase in weight also comes with it a general improvement in the body. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, and the bright and healthy pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.CAUTION—While Blue Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who are not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.LEAVE IT TO "PAL"Dog's Owner Relies on Animal's Intelligence.Offspring of Gray Wolf and Highly Bred Scottish Guardian of Sheep, Four-Footed Companion is Beyond Value.While in Alabama I made the acquaintance with the strangest dog I have ever heard of—the most unique creature it has been my province to get acquainted with, writes George F.
Borba in the Columbus Dispatch. He belongs to a man living at Tyson-ville, but is known all over the state, and his name is "Pal."Pal's mother was a shepherd and lived on the plains out West, where she looked after a big herd of sheep.
In fact, she was one of the best sheep dogs in the whole region. His father was a gray wolf. So Pal is half wolf and half dog—a common enough thing out West.Pal grew up with the sheep his mother looked after, and learned all the tricks of rounding them up and bringing them in. But he learned a whole lot more than the average sheep dog knows. He learned that every other animal as well as sheep can be directed and guided and taken care of if you know how to do it. So when Pal's owner wants any certain animal on the farm brought in, he simply tells the dog what he wants and Pal attends to it. He can tell the dog to go to the pasture a mile away and bring in a certain cow or calf or hog and it is done.But the strange thing about it is that Pal also brings in other dogs.
His owner has numerous bird dogs,
which he trains upon the plantation.
Pal helps train them. If a dog gets too far away, the trainer says, "Pal, bring him in," and Pal does so. He runs to the dog and crowds him toward the owner. He simply will not let him go in any other direction. He doesn't fight the other dog, although at times it may be necessary for him to take hold of an ear and nip it a little. But he annoys the dog until there is nothing else for it to do but to be guided by Pal.Then Pal is the high sheriff or police man of the whole plantation. He keeps the peace between the other animals. If two dogs get into a fight, Pal separates them. If he finds a couple of hogs or chickens fighting, he does the same thing. He doesn't bother anything upon the plantation unless it is doing something it ought not to do, and then he takes a hand in the matter and settles it. If he finds a pig in a field where it doesn't belong, he drives it out without being directed to do so. If a horse slips its bridle while hitched to the hitching post and convicts down the road, it is only for a few moments, for Pal is close upon its heels or at its nose and he brings it back and keeps it standing where it was left.Taking the Next Census.The government takes stock of its resources this year. July 1, 1919, begins the next decennial census of the population and industries of the United States. It comes fittingly at an important epoch in the nation's destiny and at a time when we are launching upon a new era of expansion and foreign interest. Thomas R. Logan says in Leslie's. Our statesmen and students will be deeply concerned in the data accumulated as to the value of our industries as well as to their extent. It will be a greatly energized and strengthened America which the new census taker will find. He will observe and record the effects of the war upon our industrial life. He will report also the exact number of our citizens by races and ages. It will be possible to determine how far General Crowder's draft registration fell short of the actual number of population of draft age. The last census showed 98,781,324 population. Guesses as to the present population range from 105, 000,000 to as high as 112,000,000.
Inroads of the war, of influenza, without compensating immigration, have abated our rate of increase. Despite this, the totals may surprise us."Times" as Smallest Seller."Having blown the horn of our American friends as to their circulations," said Lord Northcliffe at a luncheon to American editors, "I may noon we print here a special daily

you to come and see it produced. It with misappropriation of government funds and insisted the spirit displayed in official circles found its reflection in the robberies by the common people. Burglaries and ordinary robbery in Tampico as well as in the country places he declared to be common.

Britt, who was a soldier in the tank corps of the American army in France, confirmed to the committee the recommendation that was attributed to Secretary of Finance Luis Cabrera that members of the American Legion in Tampico should be deported. The membership he said was nearly 400.

"What are you going to do?" asked the chairman, "are you going to get out?"

"We won't get out if the United States government stays behind us," he answered.

Four of the members of the legion are Mexicans who served with the American army. Britt said that since he left Tampico they had been arrested.

Oil Industry Essential

Although not connected with the oil industry he supplemented much of the testimony already in possession of the committee regarding the treatment accorded oil companies by the Carranza government, adding, however, that in his opinion it would be well for all men engaged in the work there to get out if they couldn't get protection. He was reminded of the importance of continuing the production of Mexican wells but his reply was that Mexico without her income from the wells would be "starved out in three months."

McBee's story of the killing of Lee Sharp and Clarence Sellers was an added dramatic bit of testimony. The young men disappeared on the Rosita ranch, just across the border from Del Rio, the home of Mr. McBee. Ten days after they had disappeared their bodies were found. Their condition was such as to convince the men on the border of the manner in which they had died. According to them the boys had been dragged by mounted men until dead.

Rope Around His Neck

Their bodies were located in a fissure 100 feet deep. The body of Sellers was found, caught on a little ledge. That of the other was brought from the bottom of the chasm by men who were lowered on ropes to recover it. The necks of both were broken the heads and bodies otherwise mangled. On Sellers was a remnant of the rope remained. It had been thrown over his head and then a "half hitch" made, the rope passing through his mouth. The place where the rope was severed told how he had been suspended for a time over the cliff before some one cut the rope, carrying away the longer part.

McBee said no one had ever been arrested for the murder of the young men but he frankly expressed his own opinion as to who did it adding that his opinion was that of many other men along the border who believed the boys had been killed because they were endeavoring to find evidence as to the identity of thieves who were robbing the cattle men and sheep men.

The story of the disappearance of the "Blalock colony" was told by G. N. Blalock, its founder. He told the committee it once comprised about one hundred families, all Oklahoma farmers in very moderate circumstances. When he went into the venture he and a relative had in it $4,000. In addition he had about $2,000. He told the committee of the aspirations of the men to acquire and develop their own homes and how the order or suggestion from the American consul at Tampico caused them to leave in 1914. They had been in Mexico since 1903.

Telling of five murders of Americans he said no one had ever been executed for the crimes and no show of punishment given in the majority of cases.

SAYS MANY MEXICANS OF BEST CLASS WOULD BE GLAD OF INTERVENTION

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—"Friendly intervention" to restore stable government in Mexico would receive the support of many of the best class of Mexicans, the number of whom would increase with time, Edward Field Harvey, vice president of the La Guna company of Mexico, testified today before an examiner for the senate foreign relations subcommittee. Mr. Harvey, who is a British subject, said he sent five years in Mexico as a representative of his company, which, he said, owned 650,000 acres of timber and rubber lands. Harvey advocated blockade of all ports and occupation of Mexico City. The first duty of the United States after intervening, he said, would be to call a constitutional convention and take steps to reorganize the government.

"The Mexican mind is fertile soil for radical beliefs," Mr. Harvey said. "No greater menace to the industrial welfare of the United States could possibly arise than the spreading of radicalism among the Mexicans. That is another reason for cleaning up Mexico."

Mr. Harvey defended Huerta as a "genuine constitutionalist." He blamed the present ill-feeling between Mexico and the United States on "the withdrawal of the steady influence of Henry Lane Wilson and the personal baiting of the Mexican government."

Harvey, replying to a question as to how many troops would be needed for the form of intervention which he suggested, said:

"A well equipped column of 25,000 would be sufficient to reach and supply the capital, with little loss provided it was supported by railroad troops and railroad guards to maintain communication with Vera Cruz."

"Mexican hostility," the witness added, "will increase as in the past because the United States does not insist upon the proper respect in its diplomatic exchanges with Mexico."

MURDERED MEN'S BODIES BROUGHT TO GALVESTON

Galveston, Jan. 14. (AP)—The bodies of F. J. Roney of Houston and Earl Boles of Thorndale, Texas, who were killed Dec. 30, supposedly by Mexican bandits at Mata Redonda, Vera Cruz, and were found Jan. 5, reached Galveston today on board the tank steamship Trinidadian. Patrick H. Heeney, representing the International Oil company, for whom Roney was superintendent of the material department and Boles was camp boss, accompanied the bodies. According to Mr. Heeney the men were returning in an automobile to their own camp from the camp of the Texas company when they were attacked.

Roney was shot through the heart and killed while Boles' death was caused from knife wounds in the back after he had been shot down.

The bodies were forwarded tonight to Houston, Mr. Roney's home. Interment of the body of Mr. Boles will be at Thorndale.

BULLETS IN BODIES WERE NOT TYPE USED BY MEXICAN BANDITS

Houston, Jan. 14. (AP)—The oil steamer Trinidadian with the bodies of F. J. Roney of Houston and Earl Boles of Thorndale, Texas, arrived in Houston shortly before midnight.

Patrick H. Heeney, oil tank contractor at Tampico and a member of the Knights of Columbus, accompanied the remains to this city. Further than describing the finding of the bodies of the slain men and the trip to this country, Mr. Heeney would make no statement for publication.

One of the men aboard the Trinidadian however told of the investigations made by the American consul and other Americans at Tampico which established the fact that the men were killed by federal soldiers. He requested that his name be withheld because he made frequent trips to Mexico and feared designs upon his own life.

The man said: "There is absolutely nothing to support the statement by the Carranza government that the men were killed by bandits, while every circumstance points conclusively to federal soldiers as the murderers."

"A bullet extracted from Earl Boles' foot proved to be of a type used only by Carranza soldiers in that district."

Would Have Cabinets Appointed

Washington, Jan. 14. (AP)—Declaring cabinet officers have developed great powers in government, Senator Kenyon, republican, Iowa, announced tonight that he would endeavor to have a plank inserted in the 1920 platform of the republican party, requiring the presidential nominee to make public his proposed cabinet appointments thirty days before the elections.

CURTIS SEEKS FEDERAL LYNCHING LAW

told the committee that there recently had been suggestions that the United States intervene in Mexico because about six Americans had been killed while within the same period thirty-six negroes had been lynched in this country.

Legislation to prevent race riots and lynchings clearly comes within the constitutional powers of congress, said Mr. Johnson, who added that it has taken no radical activity to make the negroes feel the oppression.

Rev. J. G. Robinson, negro, Philadelphia, national organizer for the Equal Rights League of America, said he had been driven from his home because of his work on behalf of the negro. Other witnesses were John R. Shillady, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Archibald H. Grimke, president of the Washington branch of that organization.

NEARLY SIXTY YEARS BUT THE CHASM IS NOT YET ENTIRELY BRIDGED

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 14. (AP)—The executive board of the Savannah chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy today adopted a resolution protesting against the use of a quotation from Lowell on a memorial bronze tablet to be unveiled at the municipal auditorium next Monday, Robert E. Lee's birthday. The protest is not against the inscription but it is contended that as the memorial is to Chatham county, Ga., soldiers, a sentiment from a southern orator should be used.

The resolution declares Lowell was a pronounced abolitionist.

STOCK MARKET WEAKER UNDER RUMOR FEDERAL RESERVE RESTRICTION

New York, Jan. 14. (AP)—Rumors current in Wall Street that the directors of the federal reserve bank had taken further steps at the weekly meeting today to restrict speculation in the stock market, proved to be without foundation. Officials of the bank stated that the meeting was chiefly of a routine character, although existing financial conditions formed a basis of discussion.

Apprehension that the bank might deem it advisable to raise its interest and discount rates contributed to the day's weak stock market.
